Join us for an informative and interactive day to learn about the latest advances in the prevention, diagnosis, management and treatment of several cancers. These include: breast, gynecologic, leukemia, lymphoma, lung, prostate and colorectal. Education displays will provide information on services available at Stony Brook University Cancer Center, including social work, patient advocacy, nutrition, physical therapy, support groups and the Cancer Survivorship Program. Information from community organizations, such as American Cancer Society, Leukemia & Lymphoma Society and Strength for Life will be available.
