The National Weather Service has issued a Blizzard Warning for our area beginning Saturday at 4:00 a.m. through noon Sunday. The advisory is associated with a large and powerful nor'easter which is expected to impact a large swath of the east coast this entire weekend.

While the greatest snowfall amounts are expected to be south of Long Island, in and around the Washington, D.C. metro area, meteorologists expect that we may see as much as a foot of snow combined with high winds that may exceed 50 MPH and coastal flooding.

Please monitor local media coverage or the National Weather Service for up-to-date weather forecasts and notifications. For your safety and the safety of responders, please adhere to all travel restrictions and advisories.

For your convenience, I have listed some important emergency and not-emergency contact numbers to help you get through the storm should you need assistance:
