HAUPPAUGE, NY – Suffolk County Legislator Kara Hahn this week recognized two participants of the Suffolk County Legislature's 2016 Page Program that interned within her office. Stony Brook University undergraduate student Kevin Rutigliano and Stony Brook University Masters of Arts in Public Policy candidate Thomas Harrison were nominated and selected for the 11-week program that provides high school seniors and university level students with a unique perspective on the inner workings of the legislative process and the public interactions that define the role of an elected representative.

[More]

Pages enrolled in the program each worked two days per week in the office of the legislator with whom he or she was paired, providing legislative research, increasing the legislator's social media presence and engaging with residents. Each Friday, Pages participated in workshops and lectures on leadership and government held in the Legislature's Smithtown office.
