Rob Calarco and Christopher Schneider, BMHMC Assistant Director of Imaging Services are pictured in the Special Procedures Suite where a C-Arm is used to produce diagnostic X-rays that display on the monitor in real time. C-Arms are state-of-the-art medical equipment that have allowed for the serious advancement of minimally invasive procedures, like cardiac catheterization.*

Patchogue: Legislator Rob Calarco met with Brookhaven Memorial Hospital Medical Center leaders to discuss how BMHMC, which now serves twenty-eight communities throughout Suffolk County as a Level II Trauma Center, can further its mission to serve community needs and access resources to do so.

“Brookhaven Memorial Hospital Medical Center is a prized regional resource. It has come a long way from its beginnings as small community hospital in 1956. Today, it delivers technologically-advanced medical care, operates an extremely busy and advanced emergency department, and a host of innovative healthcare programs on its main campus as well as at our health centers and another state-of-the-art facility in downtown Patchogue.

“It’s my goal to work with hospital leaders to do what I can do to ensure that both hospital and residents are well served in the area that matters most to us all: our health and wellbeing,” said Leg. Calarco.
